

The Boston Globe

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 2009

THE WEEKEND

TOMORROW

Banding together

The Honk! Festival has nothing to do with cars or ducks. It's a group of 30 street bands from around the world who will celebrate "community" at the three-day festival starting tomorrow in several locations in and around Boston. Things will get loud when the Pinettes from New Orleans — advertised as the world's only all-female brass band — perform at the Boys and Girls Club in Roxbury (6 p.m., 115 Warren St.). The ladies will also be in Davis Square on Saturday, playing with more than 25 bands. Oct. 9 from 3-8 p.m., rain or shine (through Oct. 11). Free. East Boston, East Somerville, Roxbury, Dorchester, Chinatown, Boston Common. www.honkfest.org

Wish an ea
Saturday. T
age 5 and t
Band. Gigs
Dinah Wasl
others follo
Fingers tha
solo concer 67 Newbur,
summit.co

V
For those w
"Sleep No I
hosts Punct sensory the
and Hitchc School into where acto
setting to tl
journey. St
(through Ja discount at and older. 1
617-547-83